“ You were the most beautiful woman. I am totally heart broken. You took part of me with you. You knew you would and so did I. It's so hard for me to talk to you with all these tears running down my face. We stayed so close through all the years . Guess we can say we have been through thick and thin together. I so remember when we were young how we loved to go skating. Your mom made you those cute little skating outfits and you would let me borrow one to wear. Then we got older and bought matching clothes. I think we were trying to be twins. Then we grew up a while and raised our kids together. All of our kids felt like we were their Aunt. That was just alright with us huh? Then their was the time we went back to the skating rink for one of the grandkids birthday party. We put us some skates on thinking we would be able to skate again. Then away we went to the big kids rink, just to realize we could no longer skate. Back to the little kids rink we went and could barely skate in there. I'm going to miss you being my model for the camera. I made you a going home to be with Jesus video. You knew I would. I loved you so much and I still do. I have to go now cause these tears are making it hard for me type all this. I can only imagine what you are seeing and what you are doing right now. I can almost hear you telling me how beautiful it is there, and how happy you are. I will go now and I will see you soon as Jesus calls my name . RIP Deborah Irene Hortman
