“ So sad to hear of passing of Dennis, I first met him 50 years ago. He served Smith County Sheriff's Department along with my deceased husband, and won the heart of my 5 year old daughter when he climbed the rodeo arena fence, ran up to where we were sitting and kissed her on the cheek, leaving a big smear of make-up. It seems all my memories of him, he was smiling, enjoying life. I know he is well remembered by many friends and family. Rest in Peace, Dennis

“ When I moved to Lindale in the mid-80s as Editor of The Lindale News, Dennis was one of the very first to introduce himself. He made sure that I knew of all the happenings in town and got me involved in the Lindale Chamber and his idea for a Rodeo, and he didn't stop until he made that happen! So many committee meetings and work and now the Rodeo has grown to be one of the top events for Lindale!
You could mention his name anywhere in the East Texas area and they would say... yes I know him! No one can ever doubt the love he had for his community and his job in law enforcement! He will be missed by many.

“ Dennis became my good friend when we were in the band together at Lindale High School. He was two years ahead of me in school, and took me under his wing. After a Friday night ballgame, he gave me some relationship advice, and became my forever friend. Through the years, we continued to keep in touch. After my beloved husband died, Dennis checked up on me often. I always knew Dennis was there for me. I will miss him very much, and will always treasure his faithful friendship.

“ Dennis Taylor, always the quintessential Texas law man to me, was an early mentor, 40-year friend and the reason I heard the calling of law enforcement. Who knew that a 15yo kid who befriended Dennis on his weekly visits to the Lindale News to drop off his weekly Constable article in the 1980s, would enter into a 32-year career in the most honorable of professions? He took me on my first ride-along and I credit Dennis with giving me my first opportunity to wear a badge and join my law enforcement family. He instilled a sense of fair play, empathy and compassion that I carried with me throughout my law enforcement career. He was also kind enough to speak with J.B. Smith one day while we were meeting with him regarding some burglaries happening north of Lindale to let him know I was a “good kid” and wanted a paying position. Dennis’ word was gold and I was essentially hired on the spot as a Deputy for the Smith County Sheriff’s Department. Dennis remained my friend for decades, even as I moved to the Dallas area, losing touch now and then but reconnecting at events like Countryfest as I reserved for Lindale P.D. late in my career. He was an inspiration to do good for the community you live in and to give back to the people who gave you their trust. God bless and rest you my friend, the world is certainly less bright without you. Jamie Guy
