“ This photo was texted to me on April 10, out of the blue, from an Air Rover employee who simply said, “Came upon this picture today.” Such a surprise and sight to see! My mother (beaming and beautiful) and dad (looking tired actually) are standing with perhaps the first (or one of the first) portable air conditioners to ever exist — the “Air Rover” by Stiles Corporation, a new category product my dad invented back in the mid-80s.

“ There are a few memories of my grandmother that I will always cherish. For brevity, I will only share a few:

The times we would meet my Grandmother and Grandfather, and they would have new shoes for me. They would always ask me, "Show us how much faster you are with those!", and I would run around wherever we meet, I always remember my grandmother being so tickled by that.

No matter the distance or how hot it was, I could always find her at one of my football games. Although she was unclear about the rules and what was good or bad, she was a real trooper for attending (especially in those hot 100 games)!

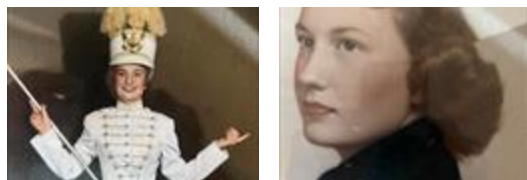

Of course, I will always remember – and try, unsuccessfully, to recreate – her famous (at least to me) "pink stuff!" She loved making it, and I, of course, loved eating it. Although I know the recipe, it just won't be the same.

Sometimes, I think we take these "small memories" for granted. But as time wears on, our minds have a funny way of bringing people back into our lives through "small" actions, and for that, I am most grateful.
