“ As a little boy you always look for somebody who you consider tough, a mans man to look up to. Uncle Gilbert was always the strongest man in the world I thought from the hugs he gave. It sounds simple but even from something as simple as a hug, he was a man to emulate. I have and will continue to try and be like him. A man others can look up to and aspire to be like. A true man in a world that has forgotten the true meaning of what being a man really is. He will not only be missed by me but he will always be remembered.##imported-begin##Nathaniel Hockensmith##imported-end##
