“ Aunt Gloria, I’ve loved you since I was five years old, and Uncle Bill brought you to meet Mother. I even remember the gift you thought to bring me. As I grew older, what fun times we had "gossiping." I remember that you always loved Granny, and that if you ever were angry with her, she never knew it. I can’t believe your beautiful laughter is silenced on this earth. But when we meet again in Heaven, we will laugh and gossip again. Love to Uncle Bill and all your sweet family.##imported-begin##Carol Carr Moring##imported-end##

“ You taught me so many lessons of life:

Always find the edges of the puzzle first so you know your boundaries.

It's ok to look at the front of the box for reference. Sometimes we need perspective on what we're doing.

Playing dress up can be fun. Be who you want. Everyone else will deal with it.

Make beautiful things. The world needs beauty from all of us.

Accept beautiful things. Even weeds picked by loving hands. Every gift is to be cherished.

Buttons have inherent magical properties.

Sing. It keeps your heart young.

Nurture your imagination in books - explore unknown lands and feel free to create new ones.

Know everything. Or, at least as much as you can.

Love your family. It's ok if everyone is your favorite.

They're all special and wonderful and unique in their own way and so is your love for them.##imported-begin##"Missy"##imported-end##

“ I am so glad she got my short note and hope she was able to understand it. She told me when she moved to Stephenville that I was the first person she met and we have been friends ever since. Practically lived together in high school. I don't know her grandchildren personally but I know all about them. I enjoyed our telephone call even if I only got to say hello. Give everyone my love, LaRue##imported-begin##LaRue Weems##imported-end##
