“ I first met Larry Wampler as we were working E-4B together. I thought he was different that most as he had a braided pony tail almost half way down his back of his graying hair. I remember Larry Wampler as a man that could make the best chili out of any animal that walked, crawled or slithered across the ground. He even made road kill chili something that was not as bad as it sounded. He had me taste some Possum chili that he had brought to work, and it was pretty good! I had at one time attended a chili fest at a local VFW where Larry came in 2nd place and truth be told he should have won. He always smiled and had a sense of humor that always left me smiling right along with him. I have thought of him several times in recent past and do so fondly. You will be missed Larry. God bless you, and may you rest in peace.
