“ 10 years... it's so hard to believe it's been 10 whole years without you. When I look back over my 29 years so many memories with you come to mind. I miss all our many Christmas memories together. You would just adore my boys. Ezra is 6 now and he is so smart and whitty like his Daddy. Lucah will be 4 in February and his little personality is starting to bloom. I hope you would be proud of the little family that Dillon and I have made. Family isn't the same anymore down here. Every one is divided. It's sad to think about what it used to be and what it could be now. So many have lost sight of what's important and that's God and family. I know you are sitting in your chair "twiddling" away with a Dr Pepper and a bag of Cheetos close by. I love you MeeMaw Daugherty. Give everyone a hug for me. ❤️

“ MeeMaw Daugherty oh how I miss hearing your laugh. I could use a round of dominoes with a side of Cheetos and Dr Pepper. I hold close so many memories we made together. It was such a blessing to have had such wonderful relationships with all of my great grandmothers. It's so uncommon for people to know one great grandparent but to have had all four was a gift from God. I hope you are having a wonderful Christmas reunited with your family. You wouldn't believe how big my boys are now. Ezra is five and Lucah is almost three. You would see so much of me in them especially Lucah. He makes me laugh so hard at his little personality. Christmas is a lot different from when you were here with us last but we have found such beauty in the ashes. I love you very much and miss you. Merry Christmas MeeMaw!

“ MeeMaw Daugherty it's been 8 years. How is that even possible? I would give anything to hear you cackle laugh one more time or to be sitting sharing a Dr Pepper and some Cheeto puffs over a game of dominoes. Life has changed so much since you have been gone. I know you are up there shaking your head right now. I wish you could have met these two boys of mine. They love like crazy and have more energy than I ever did as a kid. Don't worry I'm teaching them how to love scrambled eggs and grilled cheese. I love you so much. Christmas still isn't the same without you...

“ Today would be your 96th Birthday. It is so hard to believe it has already been almost three years since you have been gone. All of the memories always come rushing back when I think of you. One of my favorite memories was when you and I laughed until we cried when MeeMee dropped the watermelon in Brookshires. I will never forget how you taught me to make grilled cheese and scrambled eggs at 3AM at your apartment down here in Lindale. I remember the times in Paris at your apartment we would walk down to the park with the Rocket Ship and you would watch me climb to the top. I will treasure all the times you came and stayed with us at Christmas time or went camping with us. I thank you for teaching me how to laugh and how to be a giving person. You would give the shirt off your back if you saw someone in need. I thank you for raising an amazing man that I call Dad. I miss you to the moon and back, but I know that I will see you soon. I love you MeeMaw Daugherty and Happy Birthday sweet angel.

“It's always an honor to remember someone that has been so special in your life. She was my Mother-in-law, yet like a Mother to me and she was a dear friend. She loved people and spent lots of time making pies, especially her chocolate pie, or "hypocrite" pie as she called it. Today she has gone to her final home and to those who loved and cherished her so much....her Mother, Dad, Brothers and so many friends like my Mother who was her dominoe partner for so many years. The greatest homecoming to her was to see her Lord and Saviour who she loved and served so many years. It is not a sad parting but a time of joy for someone who loved so much but seem to be forgotten by so many of those who should have been there for her. She cried many a lonely tear but today she is rejoicing around God's throne. She's not lonely anymore, she's spending Christmas with Jesus this year. MaMaw you will always have a special place in my heart and I have the assurance that I will see you soon." Love Margaret Missildine

“God has truly blessed my life by allowing me to be able to grow up knowing all four of my great grandmothers. MeeMaw Daugherty and I were pretty tight. She was my partner in crime. She was such a caring, loving, and giving lady. She will be very much missed. We come together Thursday not to mourn but to celebrate such a beautiful life lived to its fullest. We love you sweet lady.
