“ Zona influenced my life in so many ways.

First, through the characteristics she passed on to her daughters, especially Doris. I heard many "mother" stories from Doris about Zona and most were about loving family and wanting the best for hers.

But Doris also passed along housekeeping tips from her mother, and when I was around Zona during a visit to Conroe, she'd usually tell me something that would help me in my home.

Just last week, I took a head of cabbage out of my fridge. Believe me it had been in there awhile, but I had it wrapped in plastic like Zona had once advised. It was crisp as if it'd just been picked out of Farmer Brown's garden.

I also know bedsheet washing tips, and pie making tips, and some of Zona's recipes are now my family's favorites.

Doris, thank you for sharing your mom and all her gifts with me.

I know Ms. Crone's family will remeber many Zona stories and have a blessed time over the next few days of sharing those.

My very real regret is that there will be no new Zona stories lived out among us. I will miss her. I bid farewell to a precious godly woman.##imported-begin##Cathy Messecar##imported-end##
